For more than a year, a great injury which can hardly be computed in dollars and cents. From the above it is very apparent that the injury done the Denver and Rio Grande Company by the error in Judge Hallett's decision has been fully as great as that done to the Atchison company, provided that the latter (as all) has expended in construction.

It should be remembered that the error in the decision gave property and rights belonging to the D. & R. G. to the A. T. & S. F., but, under these circumstances, the D. & R. G. company claim no compensation for losses fully equal to those which the Atchison road can possibly sustain. Therefore it is hard to see on what ground either of fairness, equity, or justice the A. T. & S. F. can lay claim to any compensation for losses it sustained under a decision which greatly wronged its opponent. It is urged that Judge Hallett protect the Atchison road because the work done in the canon was on the strength of his decision. But Judge Hallett should also remember the injury his decision did to the other party in making any equitable decision. The wronged party, if any, should be reimbursed.

The United States supreme court in deciding this case simply said that the Atchison road was entitled to some compensation for money expended in those parts of the canon where there was room for only one road. This is equitable and just because under the act of 1875 the court decided the Atchison road had a right to pass over the D. & R. G. grade in the narrow parts of the canon, and hence ought not to pay for the roadbed twice. Judge Hallett has wisely left the question for ultimate decision to Judge Miller, and in view of the fact that the approved opinion given by Judge Harlan, it is not difficult to predict what the decision will be.

Naturally, the women of Massachusetts desire to know exactly what steps they must take to make their rights as electors secure. The following preliminary steps are being carefully prepared by Judge Russell, whose active support of the new law just passed was largely conducive to its passage.

Women who have paid a state or county tax within two years of election, need not take any action, except to demand registration. This demand may be made (1) in Boston, fourteen days before election. (2) In other cities, seven days before election. (3) In towns, at any time up to Saturday before election. If the tax has been paid by a parent or guardian, it is sufficient. If the woman has paid no tax, she must on or before September 15, give written notice to the assessors that she desires to pay a poll tax. She must also furnish evidence that she was an inhabitant of the town or city on May 1. She must also furnish a true account of her estate real and personal, under oath. (1) If she has no real estate, the fact that such estate is returned, does not, of itself, subject it to taxation. For example, a woman returns that she has a deposit in a savings bank. It is not taxed, because it is exempt by law. But it must be returned.

Persons only desiring to pay a poll tax for suffrage may have the tax divided so as to pay either a state or county poll tax. This in Boston will be $1.00. In some towns it will be much less. The state and county tax will differ in most places. And suffrage may be gained by paying the smaller tax.

By following the above directions every woman in the state, duly qualified, may exercise her legal right to vote for members of the school committee. L. S. in Woman's Journal.

Articles of association have been filed by the South Pueblo Water Company.

It is the purpose of the company to supply So. Pueblo with water from the lake near by.

The capital stock of the company is placed at $50,000, divided into shares of $50 each.

The Kansas City Daily Times gives the following notice of the GAZETTE: Leadville, May 17, 1879. A little pamphlet on Leadville has been issued by the GAZETTE Publishing Company of Colorado Springs, at twenty-five cents, which not only gives an interesting account of the rapid growth of that city, but contains also the laws of both Colorado and the United States bearing on the title of mining claims.

The Crystal City and Lake's Peak wagon and trail road company filed articles of incorporation with the county officers yesterday.

At a meeting of the directors C. O. Pearce was elected president, treasurer and superintendent.

Work will be commenced Monday next and a finished wagon road to the Crystal Park will be made by the expiration of two to three weeks.

It is now expected that the Insane Asylum at Pueblo will be opened about the middle of June.

It seems a question whether there will be any inmates.

Colorado has, of course, her share of adjudged lunatics, and they are scattered all over the Union, and as the state did not send them away it is questionable whether the state can bring them back.

Indeed, it is almost certain that it can not, unless authorized by the several counties that may have insane paupers abroad.

The Stock Sale.

The Last Day of the Races.

The races yesterday afternoon attracted a not very large and upon the whole a not very enthusiastic assembly. The last race on the programme was the first to go off with the full wine of 2:30 horses. W. B. Von Richthofen, h. m. Little Bell, M. C. White, Colorado, C. W. Bond, h. m. R. A. Southworth, h. m. Little Bell, h. m. M. Smith, h. m. Harry. The horses made a good start, but Harry took the lead with Little Bell close after him. Harry was the favorite in the pools and sold readily at two to one against the field. The race was a stern chase for all the horses except Harry and the black came under the wire with lengths ahead of his closest pursuer. The heat was taken by him in 2:13 with Little Bell second, Colorado third, Fountain Belle fourth, and Jessie White distanced. The latter mare broke badly even at the start, and kept it up all around the course. What she can do as a trotter was not demonstrated yesterday.

Harry sold higher than ever in the pools and odds were given as great as 11 to 2 that he would win the race. The second heat was a repetition of the first as far as Harry was concerned, but Colorado got second to Little Bell's third and Fountain Belle's fourth. The time was a shade better than the first, being 2:43.

Harry was now an established favorite and it was difficult to obtain wagers on the field at any odds. Colorado seemed to be second choice but it was conceded that Harry had a sure thing on the race. The third heat settled all doubts for the black came in an easy first, while Colorado pleased his backers by winning second with Little Bell third and Fountain Belle distanced. Time 2:45.

The announcement following this race that Col. Lewis, the California favorite, would trot against time to win a purse of $1,000 if he beat 2:21 created considerable excitement. However, odds were freely given that he would not make 2:25. The gray Colonel was sent around the track at a swinging pace by his driver, and at the finish a good many individuals experienced unpleasant sensations when the judges announced that the mile had been done in 2:24 1/2. The horse at once arose in favor, and even bets that he would do the next mile in 2:23 found no takers.

No doubt many unfortunate regretted their timidity when they saw Lewis break hopelessly on the first quarter and gallop leisurely along to the half mile post. Their regrets were too late, however, and there was a sigh of disappointment when the time of the mile was announced as 2:24 1/2. A scrub quarter race between a gray pony and a bay mare created a slight diversion until Doty and Calmer came on the track track for the final race. The first heat between these two well known horses was an excellent one, Calmer coming in half neck in advance of his competitor. The time was pretty good, being 2:32 1/2.

Calmer, of course, received the favor of betting men and was backed at odds to win the race, but when Doty took the second heat in the slow time of 2:39 1/2, the wagers were even on the result. The judges by this time were a little impatient at the hour for the arrival of the Denver train approached, and frequent assurances that under the Banana management the train was always three hours late failed to calm their nerves. Nevertheless, the third heat was called, and Doty took the lead bravely. Calmer broke badly, and the mare gained on him every moment. Those who held pools on Calmer sighed as they saw his demoralization, and when Doty won easily, they submitted gratefully to their fate. The time was 2:37.

This ended the Colorado Springs meetings. We would say in summing up the results of this two days' meeting that time has decidedly the best of the bargain, and we will venture the prophecy that Col. Lewis and Adelaide will do better next week at Denver on a slower track.

The Congregational Association.

The semi-annual meeting of the Congregational Association was held at Boulder from May 7th to 11th. Nine persons were present from Colorado Springs, viz: Rev. J. W. Pickett and wife, Prof. J. H. Keer and wife, Rev. R. T. Cross, C. C. C. and wife, Miss Tuck and Miss Bowen. The newly-organized churches at South Pueblo, Coal Creek and Silverton, were received to the association. Besides these, six new churches have been organized during the past year in the Black Hills. One minister has died during the year, and eight new ones have come onto the field. As the Congregational churches are self-governing there is little business to be transacted at the association. The time is given up to essays, sermons, discourses, etc. By invitation of President Sewall the association in a body visited the state university, where they met a cordial reception from the president and his amiable family. The view from the top of the building is very fine. The university seems to be doing a good work, and the Congregationalists of the state, while especially interested in Colorado College, have a warm feeling toward the university, especially as it seems to be under influences not unfavorable to Christianity. The fall meeting of the association will be held at Colorado Springs.

Pueblo is favored with an encampment of gypsies. They promise carbonates to all who will cross their palm with silver.

Industrial Association.

We have received the premium list of the Colorado Industrial Association. This is their seventh annual meeting, and will be held on September 23d, in Denver. The premium list has been issued earlier than usual by at least two months, at the general request of the agricultural community.

The premiums, taking the regular and special together, are as liberal as the financial status of the society will permit, and are, in many instances, a most decided improvement over former years. The farmer exhibiting the best bushel of barley will take $17 cash, and the second best $11 cash; the best bushel of wheat will take $14 in flour and cash, and the second best $10 in the same; the best bushel of oats will take $7 cash; the best bushel of corn, $7 cash; and the best bushel of rye, $7 cash. These amounts ought certainly to pay our grain growers to make a very general display.

In the live stock department, in addition to the regular premiums, the Rocky Mountain Wool Growers' Association offer $50 for the best pen of ten Merino grade ewes, divided into two premiums of $35 and $15. R. A. Southworth, proprietor of the "Pleasant View" stock farm, near Denver, offers a short-horn calf, valued at $100, for the best display of grade short-horns; W. B. O. Skelton & Son, $25 cash for the best half-bred Norman colt, the get of their celebrated stallion, "Barnard," while the man showing the best five head of fat cattle will take $25 cash.

Our fruit growers cannot complain of neglect on the part of our Lieut. Governor, who puts up $50 for the best display of fruit, divided into a first and second premium of $35 and $15, respectively. This with the regular premium will entitle the successful competitor to $50 cash. There are in addition several cash premiums on apples, peaches, grapes, etc., the whole offering on fruit being especially liberal and attractive. The same may be said of flowers, one of the most interesting features of last year's fair. The best special prizes of last year's fair. The best special prizes in this department being a handsome nickel-plated water pitcher, valued at $35, by Mr. C. H. Reynolds.

In the dairy department, there are several large regular and special premiums; the best being $25 cash, by Col. Jas. Archer, on cheese. The same may be said of vegetables, in which department, as in grain, are offered some valuable agricultural machinery, by Messrs. W. J. Kinsey, Wall & Witter, Lee & Coulter, G. P. Lare, and others.

Two $50 sewing machines are also to be noted as among the best of the special premiums, one offered by the Singer Co. for the best display of family stores, and one by the White Co. for the best lady's equestrian.

We should be glad to give a more extended resume of this very satisfactory programme, but as it is a pamphlet of nearly one hundred pages our readers will understand that it is impossible.

Climbing the Range.

As we announced yesterday the elephant which was sick in Denver has gone over the range. The Denver News feels three remarks. The carcass of Cole's dead elephant, "Pete," was dumped down in the Platte yesterday morning. The animal died rather suddenly the night previous. All the medical aid which a keeper and one or more embryo physicians could show it proved unavailing, and the big beast died quietly and without a murmur, its end being hastened by the cold taken while en route here from the south. The animal was worth considerable money, and its loss will about take the entire receipts of the Denver season if not more. The skin will be stuffed for some museum and the bones will be carried off as a souvenir of the dead monarch. Peace to his flesh.

Eight Times One.

A pleasant surprise was given to Prof. and Mrs. Parker last evening, by their friends, on the occasion of the eighth anniversary of their marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker had invited a few guests to tea, who remained until about eight o'clock. The door opened and about forty persons entered with considerable noise, bearing in their arms a lounge which was presented to them in a neat and happy speech, made by one of the ladies. The professor and his wife were indeed surprised, and a very pleasant evening was passed in conversation and music, after which the guests took their leave wishing the happy pair many wedding anniversaries.

The K. P. Survey.

Learning that a surveying party of the K. P. R. R. was camped near town, we visited their camp and obtained a few facts concerning their work. The party left River Bend on the 3d of May and made a straight cut across country to Colorado Springs. Col. Holden Wheeler is in charge of the party, which numbers about twenty members. The grade between River Bend and Colorado Springs, as everybody knows, is insignificant, and the surveying party encountered no special difficulties in their work.

This morning the surveying party will start on their way to Leadville by the way of Ute Pass. Of course we could not obtain official information as to the purpose of this survey, but it is a straw which shows the direction in which the Kaps Pacific wind blows.

What a Resident Thinks of Silver Cliff.

Everything pertaining to the mining interests of this rapidly growing state is of all times valuable to the readers of the GAZETTE, and with that object in view, the representatives of this journal, late in the evening of last evening, called on Mr. J. Brind, one of the young capitalists of Silver Cliff, who is staying at the Springs Hotel. Mr. Brind spoke substantially as follows: "In reply to your queries regarding the mining interests of the Cliff, present and prospective, I think that no other mining camp in the state has such a promising future before it as Silver Cliff, and no place has such a favorable field for legitimate speculation. In fact, for persons of limited means, it is a genuine El Dorado. The Cliff, you must understand, has not yet been developed to any extent, and the cause is simply this: the miners who have operated thus far are only persons of limited means; and have in few cases only gone down a sufficient distance to work their assessments. I cannot say that the carbonate fields are likely to turn out anything very rich, that is from the carbonate formations, but in several cases where they have gone down from 70 to 100 feet in the carbonate beds a rich deposit of galena has been struck, assaying 160 ounces in silver to the ton, and so sanguine are some of the owners of these mines that they are already contemplating the establishment of a smelter, to treat their own ore, and that of other mines. It would take me a long time to tell you all I know about mining prospects in and around the Cliff, but to give it all in a nutshell, a sort of multum in parvo, I will simply say that the discoveries made within the past few weeks around the camp in every direction, would surprise the oldest miner in the country. It was supposed that the Johnny Bull and Domingo mines were the only two galena veins to be found, but as I say, during the last month, some well-defined lodes, true fissure veins, have been discovered on Oak Creek, Dead Mule Gulch, and other places. Regarding the Dead Mule Gulch, I speak with greater certainty of the richness of its material, because I have been there and made a personal examination of the ores taken from there, and I am of the opinion that no point around the camp is likely to turn out more valuable minerals than this one. None of the shafts have been sunk deeper than from seven to eight feet. At that depth the mineral assayed twenty ounces in silver and three-fourths of an ounce in gold. The lodes are well defined, and the quartz cropping on the surface can be traced for a mile. Parallel with the galena vein runs a copper lode a few feet apart, and they run dipping toward each other, it would not surprise me to find it run into gray copper. To give you an idea of the value of these prospect holes, one was recently sold for $3,000. The town of Windsor, located in the midst of these mines, is rapidly growing and will soon become a place of importance. The drawback to the camp therefore has been the want of mills to treat the ore so that outsiders could see for themselves that there was money in these mining investments, but that difficulty has now been overcome, for there are already three smelters in the course of construction, and stamp mills on the way. I don't know whether you have heard of it, but the Racine Boy, ore at the horn silver mine, was recently bonded for $50,000, in fact it may be called a purchase, for it was only bonded until a stock company could be formed, which has now been accomplished. I am sure people taking the majority of the stock. Oh, yes! by the way you asked something about the placer claims. I cannot speak with as much certainty about these as I can about the above-mentioned, for the simple reason that I have not examined them as carefully, but from what I have seen and heard from competent authorities, I think there is a rich yield to be obtained from these placer claims. To sum up the whole of the matter, using the language of the immortal Sellers, "there's millions in it" in Silver Cliff, and millions to be made if those persons of capital will come forward and make judicious investments.

Lee Chung and His Toy.

The Denver News gives the following flippant account of a very serious matter: There was a Chinese wedding down in China quarters yesterday afternoon, in which two celestial were joined together "for better or for worse" in true orthodox style. The groom was Lee Chung and the bride Leng Toy. Justice Whittemore was called upon to pronounce the solemn words and George Duggan was taken along to give away and unostentatious, there being but few guests present. The dignity of Duggan was so outraged at the sight of an old wall-eyed Chinaman, who would not put down his ironing pan to listen to the ceremony, that he interrupted the marriage to administer a rebuke. A marriage certificate was filed with the county clerk last evening, the justice received his fees and the groom with pretty plain lingo insisted on a certified copy of the license to guard against mishaps—perhaps.

Governor Hunt's Witty Reply.

The Trinidad News relates the following interesting and doubtless truthful anecdote: A Trinidad lawyer, who had formerly done business for the Denver & Rio Grande railroad company, wrote Governor Hunt, the other day, asking him for a pass over the road. The governor, in his characteristic style, replied, "My dear George: I am unable to comply with your request. Whether we own a railroad, or whether we do not, is a mooted question. Unless you have to attend a funeral and the corpse won't keep, you just wait a little. I will illustrate our position by relating the case of the Arkansas family as discovered by a traveler. He approached the door of the house and found a desperate fight going on between the old man and his wife. They ceased hostilities for a second to get breath, when the traveler inquired: 'What's the head of this family?' That's what the matter is, replied the old woman, as she again lit into the old man, with renewed vigor. 'Stranger, you just wait a minute, and that question will be settled.'

Silver in a Tin Cup.

A correspondent of the Leadville Review gives the following description of the Tin Cup district: About sixty-five or seventy miles from the flourishing city of Leadville, a new mining camp is rapidly springing up, and giving great promise of being exceedingly rich in mineral. It is the Tin Cup district, situated among the head waters of Willow Creek across the range. To reach it there are now two available routes—one by way of Cottonwood and the other by way of Chalk Creek. The first named is pine or mineral, and now largely regarded as the best route, and now largely traveled, those going through the pass generally using horses and pack animals. There is a wagon road extending through the gulch for the sun to act kindly upon the snow. In a short time, however, it may be readily traversed by wagons. As many more teams proceed to Tin Cup by way of Saguache. The people seeking personal knowledge of this district are going in at the rate of thirty or forty per day. More staking of prospect holes is progressing than actual prospecting and developing. A new city has sprung up called Virginia City, which gives promise of attaining a considerable degree of importance. One day last week ninety-two persons residing within a precinct signed a petition asking that a tinostoffice be established at that point. The climate here is exceedingly mild and decidedly pleasant. People have been going around here during the day night in their shirt sleeves during the day, while at night they have had no other shelter than their blankets. As regards its topographical situation, it is located on more of a bench than Leadville. On the higher hills some snow exists, while in and around the city considerable grass is growing most luxuriantly. There is a superabundance of it for the feeding of stock, while the water is both good and abundant. The scenery is picturesque and sublime for many miles around, and the atmosphere is as pleasant as it is salubrious. Much activity exists, and great hopes are prevalent of the future of the country. Its geological formation is granite, lime and porphyry.

At one place on Tin Cup Hill 6,300 feet of locations have already been taken up, and ore is gotten at from 2 1/2 to 14 feet from the surface. Gold Hill is covered with some exceedingly rich float. From 1,500 pounds of selected ore a mill run was had, indicating $1,014 per ton; while the second class yielded $215, and the third $178. The highest assay showed over $8,000 per ton.

Branching off from Virginia City the country merges into Taylor's Park, where a plentiful supply of timber exists, and there are many other attractions which draw prospectors, miners and speculators into this new and comparatively unexplored country.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of our people are at present worrying themselves almost to death over this vexed question, even to the extent of neglecting their business, their homes and their duty to their families, there are still thousands upon thousands of smart, hard working, intelligent men pouring into the great Arkansas Valley, the Garden of the West, where the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad offers them their choice of 2,500,000 acres of the finest farming lands in the world, at almost their own prices. If you do not believe it, write to the undersigned, who will tell you where you can get a cheap land exploring ticket, and how, at a moderate expense, you can see for yourself and be convinced.
